SAMMIES' SISTERS START IN THEIR WORK

The "Sammies' Sisters" are the new organization which is being organized in Janesville. Several of the girls have completed their first pair of socks and have already begun on their second. They are working in the evening at the home of Mrs. J. R. Nichols, 1001 North Main street. The girls are planning also a mothers' meeting, a church meeting and a fund-raising party. The treasurer reports $1.00 on the treasury. Mrs. Nichols and Miss Margaret Austin were made a committee to prepare a program for the next meeting. Most of the members are students, playing basketball, and are very social affairs. The girls are working on the socks and are very busy. The meeting closed at 8 o'clock, which is one of the most successful of the organization.

A meeting of the Mission Circle of the First Baptist Church will be held at 7.30 P. M. on Friday, October 5th, at the church. The program will consist of a song, a prayer, a reading, a sermon, and a collection. The church is very busy and the members are very active.

FORMER RESIDENT IS IN THE REGULAR ARMY

Harris Hebel, Employed in the Gazette Press Room, Writes From Gettysburg Camp.

In a letter written from the camp of the Fourth Infantry, U. S. Army, at Gettysburg, Pa., where it is being recruited to its full war strength, Corporal Harris Hebel, a former employee of the Gazette Press Room, writes to his friends of his work and activities as follows:

Gettysburg, Pa., Sept. 30, 1917.
I received your letter quite a time ago but just got a notion to answer it. I have not anything else to do. The reason I did not answer sooner is that I did not have anything to write about as everything is about the same day after day.

I have a regular job and the captain had me made a corporal so I got a little ahead. I would have been a sergeant now if I had taken a corporalship the first time I had a chance but I will have to wait my turn.

My job is not much different from the corporal, as you have to know the same things as a sergeant. There is only two dollar difference in the pay, but a sergeant has it a little easier. I get the same money as I did as a corporal, but I got more to look after, which is seven men besides myself. The recruits I got, five are Italians and two Americans, but I rather have them than seven Americans who had to be drafted. It is a shame that big husky fellows with no brains and no sense should have to be dragged in to get them to fight for their country.

It don't look very well for a country the size of ours to draft men into the army in times like these. We have a good reputation now and are not very popular around here. I see in the papers that they give these fellows big send-offs, when they leave for camp, but the poor sumps who leave are never thought of. They seem to think it is an honor to be drafted. They should have volunteered months ago. I hope they don't send some of these fellows here as we have a good reputation now and always did have. This outfit has been in one hundred and eleven battles and in every war except the revolution, and always was made up of volunteers.

The Japanese commissioner visited here a few weeks ago and we had to pass in review for them. I was in Washington last Sunday but I did not see anything, did not see but I saw the Arlington cemetery and Fort Myer where they train the recruit officers. That is the third time I have been here and I think I will not go again.

I had a French officer here last week who was instructing us in the French methods. We done away with the old system of handling a bayonet and are using the English system which is only for offensive work so it is now kill or be killed. There are no parades to amount to anything. I don't fancy that kind of fighting and would rather kick them off the old world with bullets than cut them up with a bayonet.

It looks to me, but I guess it is the only way as nobody stands in sight in the trenches. We drill only five hours a day but it might as well be all day as we have so much rest in between. We drill from eight to eleven and from one to three every day except Saturday and Sunday.

The "Non-Coms" have to go to school from three to four also so you see we don't have much time off. We have inspection Saturdays so you have to be in uniform and clean every day. We are going to get enough recruits to make 250 men to a company pretty soon, so I can see my work cut out for me—making soldiers of those fellows.

Give my regards to the fellows around here, and don't fail to write sooner than I did. Well, so long.

CORPORAL HARRIS HEBEL,
Co. C, 4th U. S. Infantry.

OPEN SEWING CLASS FOR WOMEN FRIDAY

First of Afternoon Community Classes to Start Work Tomorrow—Telegraphy Popular.

Afternoon sewing classes for women will start tomorrow at half past two at the Douglas school to continue throughout the winter, according to an announcement of Director C. F. Hill of the vocational school. The classes will be held every Friday afternoon from two-thirty until four-thirty, and are open to all women of the city. Arrangements for similar classes in the other school buildings have not as yet been completed, but they will be opened as soon as rooms can be had.

Some idea of the effect of the war on the work of the vocational school can be gleaned from the enrollment in the telegraphy courses, in which a total of thirty-one have already signed up. Twenty-one of these are in the evening class, and ten in the afternoon. Applications for the work are steadily increasing, and if a sufficient demand for the course becomes evident, Mr. Hill will start another class.

Of those who are taking the work over half are girls. The course is thorough and fits a student for actual work as a telegrapher. Two women, who took the work last year, have now positions in telegraph offices as regular operators.

The class in salesmanship, held every Wednesday evening, has increased beyond the expectations of the most hopeful, and are very practical every employee of the larger retail concerns and many other individuals have enrolled. One hundred people were in attendance last evening.

METHODISTS CHANGE PLAN FOR SERVICES

Innovation in Mid-week Meeting by Addition of Social Hour Following Prayer.

The Methodist church will begin tonight a new plan for their mid-week service. Instead of the regular meeting of praise, the church will introduce a social feature, called "the Social Hour," to follow the regular prayer service. During the month of October various organizations of the church will act as hosts and will have charge of the social and good fellowship hour. Tonight the men of the church will be in charge. Prof. Manross, President of the Methodist Brotherhood has his committee at work seeking to have every man with his family at the service. The Pastor will conduct the service of prayer from 7.30 to 8.30 P. M. After this the men will have charge of the social hour. Light refreshments will be served free. Strangers are also invited. Next week the Woman's Foreign Missionary society will act as host, and the following Thursday the Epworth league, closing the month with the Woman's Home Missionary society in charge.

NEW TAX BECOMES EFFECTIVE TODAY

Internal Revenue Collector P. J. Mount Calls Meeting of All Liquor Men for Friday.

With the signature of President Wilson to the emergency war tax law, Washington, Wednesday, the law became effective at once and in consequence there will be more red tape about obtaining a drink of liquor for several days on than there is in filing a claim for exemption for war service. The burden of the proof lays with the liquor dealer and in order that all may thoroughly understand the requirements to be enacted and the penalty for failure to conform with the law, P. J. Mount, internal revenue collector, has called a meeting of wholesale and retail liquor dealers in the city for Friday afternoon at two o'clock at Bismark hall on the Corn Exchange. A personal representative of the internal revenue department of Washington will be present to give instructions as to papers to be filed.

PLOW NOW IS PLEA TO THE GARDENER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Oct. 4.—"Plow now one acre in the fall is worth two in the spring."

This is the message of the state council of defense, co-operating with the department of agriculture, in urging food and feeds production.

The message applies not only to the farmer, who has long ago learned the value of fall plowing, but to the city dweller, who through lack of knowledge or dormant ambition, seldom turns over his used soils until spring. Thus the warning of the Loyalty Legion—"One acre plowed in the fall is worth two plowed in the spring." If it be a case of square feet, instead of acres, the answer is the same, they declare.

There must be a greater production in 1918 than this year, according to experts, and the small truck farmer, the home of the gardener and even child gardeners will be big factors in accomplishing this. One demonstration of preparedness is given in a report from Ean Claire of a farmer who recently brought in a load of strawberries—his second crop. His first crop was earlier than most others because of early cultivation.

GAMES TO BE HELD IN LARGEST PARKS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, Oct. 4.—A comparison of Comiskey park, Chicago, and the Polo grounds, New York, where the world series of 1917 will be played between the White Sox and the Giants, shows that these two baseball amphitheatres are among the largest and most commodious in the country. The western park has the larger playing field, while the New York grounds will seat between two and three thousand more spectators. Under certain conditions long hits into the Polo grounds stands will go for home runs, while in Chicago these same hits should result in punts providing the outfielders play deep enough.

Both parks possess features which will be turned to advantage by the home player although the American league team will have the edge in this respect. The members of the New York Nationals have never played at Comiskey park and are therefore unfamiliar with the peculiarities of the field. The White Sox, on the other hand, have played the Polo grounds for several years and are as much at home there as any National league team which meets the Giants on the latter's home diamond in several series each season.

So far as the seating capacity is concerned the Polo grounds will accommodate about three thousand more spectators than Comiskey park, but the total gate receipts will not differ to any great extent owing to the fact that there will be a far greater sale of box seats in Chicago than in New York. The capacity in each division of the stands is as follows: Comiskey park: Bleachers, 8,000 at fifty cents; pavilion, 8,000 at $1 each; grand stand, 8,000 at $1.50 each; box seats, 10,000 at $5 each. Total 34,000 seats for $74,500. Polo grounds: Bleachers seats, 12,500 at $1 each; 14,000 unreserved grand stand seats at $2 each; 3,000 reserved grand stand seats at $5 each; 1,400 box seats at $10.25 each. Total, 27,500 seats for $74,250.

"White Sox Park" in Chicago, is one of the most elaborate baseball parks in the country. At the time it was built in 1910 it was declared to be a "baseball palace," and since that time several other baseball clubs have erected stands along the lines of Comiskey's creation. The park is located at West Thirty-fifth street and Shields avenue, and is reached from all parts of the city, by elevated and surface lines and numerous boulevards. The playing ground is laid out with the home plate in the southwest corner of the field, thus allowing the batter to face northeast and making right field the "sun garden." The distance behind the plate to the first row of boxes in the grand stand is 82 feet. The distance down the right field and left field foul lines from the home plate to the bleachers (fence) is 382 feet. From home plate to center field fence is 450 feet.

In comparison to these measurements the Polo grounds affords much less in playing space, Chicago being much the more extensive. To begin with the distance behind the plate to the front of the New York grand stand is 62 feet, which is 19 feet less than the like territory at Comiskey park. From the home plate to the center field bleachers at the Giants' ground the measurement is 420 feet, just 20 feet less than at the home plate of the White Sox. In width the

"HIS BRIDAL NIGHT" SCORED A HIT

Pleasing Comedy Plays to Small Audience at Myers Theatre Last Evening.

"His Bridal Night" was an ingenious farce in which one of two twins who is married, quarrels with her husband on their wedding day and convinces herself that she loves another. Whereupon the other twin, who really loves the young man pretends to be the bride, which causes many complications. Mr. Frederick V. BELOIT "FAIRY" DRAFTED BUT WILL PLAY IN SERIES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Beloit, Wis., Oct. 4.—R. E. "Shorty" Thomas, a member of the Fairbanks-Morse baseball team, who went to Rockford yesterday with the third draft contingent from the Gateway city, is to appear in the Beloit lineup Saturday and Sunday when they play Janesville. The speedy left fielder is to be given a thirty-six hour leave in order to allow him to take the train to lead off the forty hitting list. Manager Chubb of the "Hill" plant went with the group from Beloit to Camp Grant yesterday and urged such a leave. It was granted. Thomas has been a busy man lately. Besides batting 1,000 percent against the Chicago Sox in their game here, he went to Rockford last Saturday and got married. Mrs. Thomas was Miss Betty May before Saturday. Sunday he was presented with a wrist watch and a purse of more than $50 by admiring friends when he stepped to bat in Sunday's game against the Cardinals.

FULTON
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
The Y. M. C. A. will conduct a membership campaign this week in Fulton and the surrounding country. A stag will be given for the boys in the near future at which H. Hubbard, State Secretary for county work, will be the principal speaker. The chief plan is to get the boys off of the street corners and put under the leadership of a capable man who can instruct them in all the healthy and manly sports.

"Barebones Parliament."
The Barebones parliament was a nickname given to a British parliament convened by Oliver Cromwell in 1653. Its enemies gave it that nickname from the name of one of its members, Praisegod Barbon, a leather dealer and Puritan preacher of that day.

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN—

At last a moving picture actress has been found who will say that she doesn't care for the out-of-doors life. She's an English girl and very pretty, though she isn't particularly well known to movie fans. Her name is Elizabeth Risdon and she says: "I'm quite an indoor sort of person, and not at all sporting. I don't like any day games, and I am not particularly fond of motoring. My principal hobbies are chess and needlework."

Here is an interesting list of spare-time recreations of some of the best-known film favorites:

MAE MARSH—I like anything connected with outdoor life—gardening, motoring, boating—anything as long as it is in the fresh air.

EARLE WILLIAMS—I'm very keen on photography, but my chief hobby is my work. I am just wrapped up in it and enjoy every moment of my existence.

EDNA MAYO—My hobby is sculpturing. I am also very much interested in the subject of dress, both professionally and in private life.

IVY CLOSE—My favorite hobby is motorcycling.

BRYANT WASHBURN—I am very fond of everything appertaining to the running track on which I have won many prizes.

BLANCHE SWEET—I'm awfully fond of motoring, and I shall never forget the day I went down to get my driver's license. I was so nervous that I nearly wrecked two telegraph poles before I managed to stop in front of the place. But I'm all right now.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN—I am passionately fond of music, which is my chief recreation. I am also very fond of signing receipts.

WARREN KERRIGAN—I am a very enthusiastic lover of outdoor life—dogs, chickens, green fields and sunshine. I love 'em all.

CRANE WILBUR—After pictures, music is my favorite pastime. It awakens my innermost soul. I speak Italian, by the way. Why they should have such an effect on me I do not know. I suppose it's because I am a dreamer.

GERALD JAMES—Fencing is my hobby. At the Olympic sports at Stockholm in 1912 I represented England at fencing; and I am all ways in my element when I have a fell in my hand.

LILLIAN BREW—I collect Oriental rugs, and venture to believe that I have a unique collection of the finest to be purchased.

HENRY B. WALTHALL—I am psychic research and in the study keenly interested in all forms of biology and Darwinism.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN—West-

ling is my favorite pastime, and I am proud to say that I hold the championship of America.

NORMA TALMADGE—Motorboating and walking are two of my favorite pastimes, and I also enjoy painting.

IT NEVER FAILS TO END MISERY OF PILES

"Hundreds of people in this vicinity," says Peterson, "know of the mighty healing power of PETERSON'S OINTMENT in eczema, salt stings, old sores, itching skin, ulcers, and all diseases of the skin. They know it cures these ailments—day it is guaranteed to cure them."

Now I want to say to every sufferer from piles, either blind, bleeding or itching, that I will guarantee that a 25 cent box of PETERSON'S OINTMENT will rid you of piles or your druggist will return your money.

"For years I suffered terribly with itching and bleeding piles. I tried everything and despaired of ever getting rid of them. It gives me great pleasure to state that Peterson's Ointment entirely cured me, and I sincerely recommend it to all sufferers."

—Yours truly, David A. Seymour, Sup't. of Parks, Buffalo, N. Y.

Simple Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring, using enough to wet the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single dandruff, no matter how much you have. It is itching and itching and itching of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be shiny, lustrous, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

The prompt and positive action of this simple, inexpensive home-made remedy in getting the inflamed or swollen membranes of the throat, chest or bronchial tubes and breaking up tight coughs, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's rest. It also cures whooping cough, colds or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. You then have a full pint—a family supply—of a much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is known the world over for its promptness, ease and certainty in overcoming stubborn coughs and chest colds.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

"No, I choose to believe, especially as he sent me word later to remain at the house, and have them in readiness for departure at any minute. Some talking of our meeting must have reached his ears."

"But how came you here, then?"

He laughed in careless good humor.

"Why, that was no trick! Think you I am one to disappoint because of so small an obstacle? As the door was refused me I sought other entrance, and found it here." He pointed through the open window.

"It was not a difficult passage, but I had to wait the withdrawal of the guards below, which caused my late arrival. Yet this was compensated for by discovering you so quickly. My only fear was encountering someone I knew while seeking you on the floor."

"You entered through this window?"

"Yes, there is a lattice work below."

"And whose office is that within?"

"My guess is that of Colonel Delgual. La Barre's chief of staff, for there was a letter for him lying on the desk. What difference? You are glad I came?"

"Yes, monsieur, but not so much for my own sake as for yours. I bring you warning that you adventure with those who would do you evil if the chance arrive."

"Bah! Monsieur Cassion?"

"This will tell you to despise the man, for he has power and is a villain at heart in spite of all his pretty ways. He said to me the cruelty of a tiger, and in this case La Barre gives him full authority."

"Hah! the governor grudge against me also?"

"Only that you are follower of La Barre, and loyal, while he is heart and hand with the other faction. He child of Cassion for accepting you as guide, and advised close watch lest you show treachery."

"D'Artigny leant motionless against the window ledge, and the light streaming in through the opening of the doorway revealed the gravity of his expression. For the moment he remained silent, turning the affair over in his mind."

"I thank you, mademoiselle," he said finally, and touched his hand, "for your report gives me one more link to my chain. I have picked up several in the past few hours, and all seem to lead back to the manipulations of Cassion. Faith! there is some mystery here, for surely the man seemed happy enough when first we met at Chevre's house, and accepted my offer gladly. Have you any theory as to this change in his front?"

"I felt the blood surge to my cheeks, and my eyes fell before the intensity of his glance."

"If I have, monsieur, 'tis no need that it be mentioned."

"Your pardon, mademoiselle, but your words already answer me—'tis then that I have shown interest in you; the dog is jealous!"

"Monsieur!"

"Good! and by all the gods, I will give him fair cause. The thought pleases me, for rather would I be your soldier than my own. See how it dovetails in—I meet you at the convent and pledge you my aid; some spy hears word of our conference to monsieur, and an hour later I receive word that if I have more to do with you I die. I smile at the warning and send back a message of insult. Then my invitation to this ball is withdrawn, and, later still, La Barre even advises that I be assassinated at the least excuse. 'Twould seem they deem you of importance, mademoiselle."

"You make it no more than a joke?"

"Far from it; the very fact that I know the men makes it matter of grave concern. I might, indeed, smile did it concern myself alone, but I have your interests in mind—you have honored me by calling me your only friend, and now I know not where I may serve you best—in the wilderness, or here in Quebec?"

"There can nothing induce me here, monsieur, not with Cassion traveling to the Illinois. No doubt he will leave behind him those who will observe my movements—that cannot harm."

"It is Hugo Chevre, I fear."

"Chevre! my uncle—I do not understand."

"No, for he is your uncle, and you know him only in such relationship. He may have been to you kind and indulgent. I do not ask. But to those

"You saw the lady?" he asked.

"In the receiving line for a moment only; a fair enough maid to be loved for her own sake, I should say. Faith, never have I seen handsomer eyes."

The other laughed.

"Tis well, madame does not over-hear that confession. An heiress, and beautiful! Piff! but she might find others to her liking rather than this Cassion."

"It is small chance she has had to make choice, and as to her being an heiress, where heard you such a rumor, Colonel Delgual?"

"You forget, sir," he said slowly, "that the papers passed through my hands after Captain la Chesnayne's death. It was at your request they failed to reach the hands of Frontenac."

GEN. HAIG'S MIND IS THAT OF THE TYPICAL GERMAN

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

London, Oct. 4.—If the war in the west is a war of wits and nothing more there is ground for the fear some people hold that it will end in a decisive battle. For it is then simply one German brain against another.

Gen. Haig, according to men who know him best and admire him most, has "the German mind."

Fortunately there is a good reason to believe it is not altogether a matter of wits. There is the ultimate superiority of the allied resources and the difference in fighting between free people and subversive people.

But if the war is a battle between Hindenburg and Haig it is a battle of wits. The German mind is a puzzle.

A great deal has been written about Hindenburg and his staff. It has been known about the soldier directing the British armies in France. Modest and retiring personally, he has been a heroic subject for the newspapers, but the United Press in the past few days has tapped a new fund of information concerning him.

Most important of this information is the fact that he has completed the process of revolutionizing the British staff. When one reads in a German magazine the phrase "according to plan," it is then simply a matter of fact. The operation described actually had been carried out in keeping with carefully prepared plans, that chance did not figure in the matter at any stage. (Some of the British military planners who have been required to cover in recent months, however, have somewhat shaken this confidence.)

But no person can doubt that the German mind is working "according to plan." Even the German high command is beginning to realize this, apparently, since it is ceasing to attribute success to the British armies beyond those achieved, in instance after instance wherein British units have taken the ground that would fit in with an exact plan and have retreated from it. They have finally made it clear to the German generals that the British are fighting according to the rules the Germans had thought were their exclusive property.

It was Haig who initiated this character of battle, so far as the British are concerned. His military critics now say he has the "German mind." He is to say he has the faculty of obtaining and utilizing the best strategic and tactical judgment of the members of his staff. His power of absorption is great, he is not excited by his ability to reach a quick decision and carry it through. Once his decision is made he has few misgivings as to results. This perhaps accounts for the sincerity that marks his countenance under all circumstances.

Lord Haldane, former secretary of war, was first to ascribe to Haig the possession of the "German mind." The officers who were under him at Adersbach where he was in command from 1912 until the war began, put the same thing in another way. They called him among themselves "Von Haig." Haig has been a long time acquiring mastery of German methods apparently. Field Marshal Evelyn Wood testified to this in the statement: "Haig knows more about the German army than any other officer in England. Twenty years ago he wrote me from Germany, where he was spending a long leave, a letter so full of prophetic knowledge that I sent it to his young wife to keep it for me. Some day someone who writes his life will tell what he forecasted twenty years before he went to fight the Germans."

The soldier will tell you Haig is a great soldier, a great politician or statesman of his remarkable grasp of political affairs. The Rev. Mr. Duncan of Edinburgh will relate the commander-in-chief's faithfulness in attending Presbyterian services every Sunday morning. Newspapers will subscribe to the general agreement: "He is more than a great soldier; he is a great gentleman."

CLEARING UP OF THE VIRGIN ISLANDS TO BE BIG JOB FOR U. S.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Washington, Oct. 4.—The United States apparently has picked up something in the way of a wholesale housecleaning job, as well as territory of vast military value. In buying the Virgin Islands, officials sent to look them over recently asked congress for $200,000 to correct these alleged conditions:

No water works in any town; drinking water obtained from cisterns or bottled in wagons from insanitary wells. Fire departments consist of hand cards, tube tanks and hand pumps. No sewerage system. No furniture for government offices, which contain old Danish stoves made of cast iron and locked with keys. The cheerful word was brought back that for many years past the island's budget has never met expenses. The biggest revenue of the island was from imports from the United States, which are now cut off. In addition, labor troubles are chronic because of importations from the Barbadoes of low class workmen.

BUDDHIST TEMPLE BUILT IN PERU BY JAP PRIEST

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Tokyo, Oct. 4.—Rev. Taian Uyeno, of the Buddhist sect of Sodo, has returned from Peru after building in that country the first Japanese temple in South America.

The priest went to Peru in 1903 with 1,000 Japanese emigrants with instructions to propagate Buddhism. After great hardships, working first as a laborer and then as a baker of confectionery, Uyeno slowly amassed enough money to construct a temple which he called "Jionji," or "Great Mercy." Later he founded a primary school for the education of the children of the emigrants.

The priest says that when he was building the temple he was persecuted by Peruvians, and that attempts were made to burn both temple and school. The relations between the Japanese emigrants and the native people have, however, now become peaceful and friendly.

Last Week's Question and the Answer

Last week's query: "Who made the first confession of murder?" is answered in Genesis, Chapter 4, Verse 23:

"And Lamech said unto his wives, Adah and Zillah, Hear my voice; ye wives of Lamech, hearken unto my speech: for I have slain a man to my wounding, and a young man to my hurt."

VETERANS TO PLAY IN WORLD'S SERIES

New York Oct. 4.—A majority of the veterans of preceding world series will be found in the lineups of the New York Nationals and the Chicago Americans when these two teams meet late this week in the 1917 series. Of the eight players who are expected to defend the home lines four have already passed through one or more of these baseball classics and of this number three will wear the uniforms of the Giants and one the colors of the White Sox. Another peculiarity is that the veteran material will cluster between second and third bases, the initial ones being guarded by less experienced players.

At first, Manager McGraw will place his reliance in Holke, while the Chicago interests will be defended by Garfield in years of experience and the knowledge which comes with it. Garfield will have the edge over his younger opponent. Both are steady, consistent players, covering the bag and the adjacent territory without spectacular effort but with a high degree of efficiency.

According to their records for the past season in their respective leagues there is little to choose between them so far as fielding or hitting is concerned. Holke has a slight advantage of the average in both these departments as well as in stolen bases and double plays. He is also three years younger than Garfield, but when all is considered it is likely that the latter's greater experience will slightly outweigh Holke's speedier footwork. The margin of advantage is so small one way or the other that so far as forecasts are concerned the two players will be equal in offensive and defensive work.

Two of the best second basemen in their respective leagues will be opposed at the midway sack and the struggle for honors between Eddie Collins and Charles Herzog should be one of the thrilling features of the series. World series play is no longer a novelty to either, as Collins has participated in four such conflicts while a number of the Philadelphia Athletics and Herzog has seen service in three series with the Giants. Both are noted for their ability to rise to extreme heights of play at times and from their keystone position to dominate the work of the entire infield combinations.

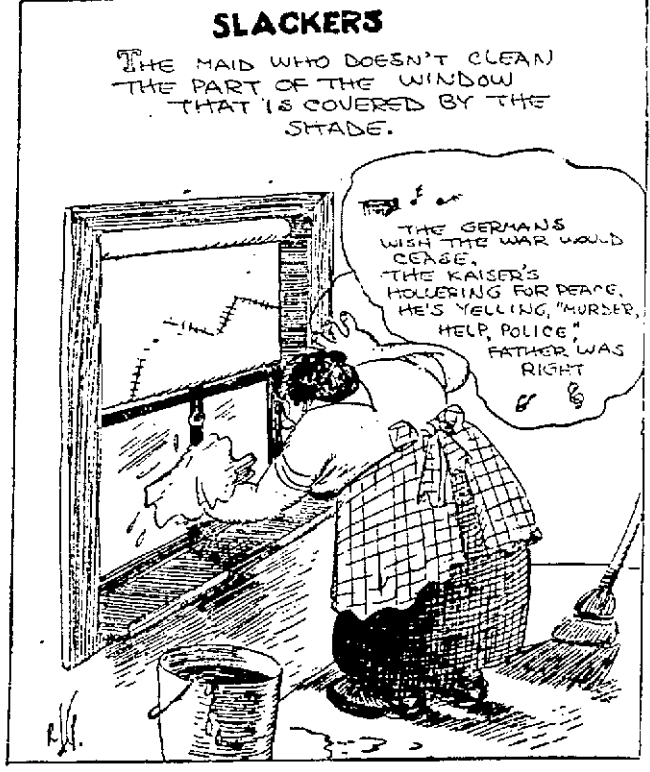

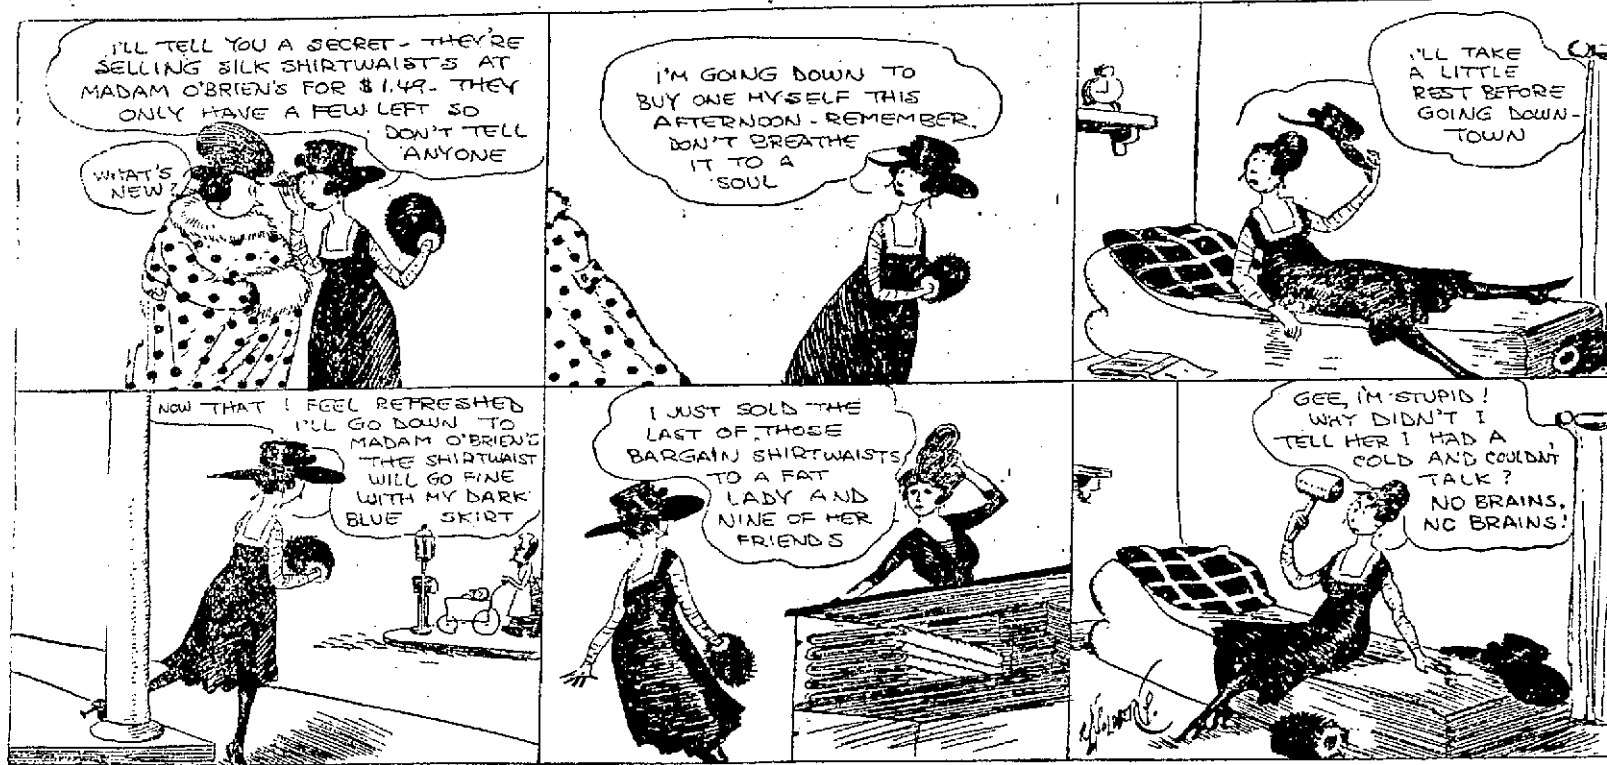

Herzog, owing to the injury to his back due to a fall earlier in the season, has not played as regularly as Collins and there is just the bare possibility that he may not be available for the series, but this chance is so remote that he can for comparative purposes be considered as the Giants' second baseman. If it proves to be otherwise the strike of the New York club will suffer a severe slump even before the first ball is pitched. As their records stand for the season Collins has the better of Herzog in batting, fielding, stolen bases and double plays. The same is true of his averages in past world series. Collins has batted .375 and fielded .975 in four series to Herzog's .214 and .935 in three past series struggles.

If Herzog enters the fray benefited by the rest he insisted on taking, after the Giants had virtually clinched the pennant, he would prove to be capable of more efficient work than his record would indicate, for he is one of the best "money players" in the game today. He is a dangerous hitter at critical moments of the play, resourceful and daring in the field and a man who is not willing to concede defeat until the final out is made. Collins, however, on such occasions and for as available must be given the edge at second over the Giants' guardian of the keystone base.

Injuries also complicate the situation at short and third. The White Sox regular third baseman, "Buck" Weaver, broke one of his fingers in a game late in the season and did not return to the lineup until a few days before the opening race closed. In the meantime McMillan had held down this position so satisfactorily that there is some doubt as to whether Weaver will return to the lineup or not. It would not be surprising if manager Rowland sent him into the big series at shortstop in place of Rigler.

If McMillan should prove to be the case, Zimmerman, as the regular shortstop, would be decidedly with the Giants, for the former Chicago Cub player has passed through the test of one world series. In 1907, when the White Sox defeated the Chicago Cubs, Zimmerman also figured better than McMillan on the season's averages of the two best shortstops in the American league. Zimmerman has batted .296 and fielded .941 in the National circuit while McMillan's averages in the American league are .296 and .928. In double plays Zimmerman has stolen bases. Zimmerman also batted .300 and fielded .941 in the National circuit while McMillan's averages in the American league are .296 and .928. In double plays Zimmerman has stolen bases. Zimmerman also batted .300 and fielded .941 in the National circuit while McMillan's averages in the American league are .296 and .928. In double plays Zimmerman has stolen bases.

to his old position there will be a far less considerable factor on the bases. Should equal to holding his own with Zimmerman both at bat and in the field.

Risberg has played short for the Chicago team most of the year and it was his acquisition that finally completed the White Sox baseball machine and made a pennant possible. He is a rather erratic batter, however, and for that reason it is not unlikely that Weaver will be sent to short, in the opening game at least, and Risberg held on the bench for emergencies. On this basis Weaver could be expected to replace Fletcher, the Giants' regular shortstop, and the White Sox appear to have a little better in comparison. Weaver is a better hitter than Fletcher, fully as

The Credit They Give You.

"What is success?" asked the man with a liking for the abstract.

"Success," answered the cynical friend, "is something that impels you: old acquaintances to smile significantly and remark, 'A fool for luck!'"

The Cincinnati Reds aren't the least bit likely to grab the pennant as announced in mid-season, but they seem reasonable sure of fourth place. Which isn't at all bad seeing as how they finished in last place last season.

MADDEN & RAE

ANNOUNCE FOR

Friday and Saturday

A FORMAL

Fall Opening

Inaugurating the completeness of our assemblage of correct attire for Fall & Winter Wear

Suits, Frocks,
Coats, Gowns, Blouses,
Millinery, Furs

Millinery—

Masters the Artistry of Line

The hat is once again the climax of the costume. And this Opening Week presents a collection of masterpieces in millinery—delightful proof of this turn of fashion, decreeing hats for all occasions even unto the formal.

Women's Suits—

Present Convincing Proof of Distinction

This display is prepared with a thorough anticipation of the many occasions at which the suit mode is correct. In consequence every separate occasion is met with the proper mode. The high degree of tailoring is a distinguishing trait throughout.

Blouses—

Certain Means to Gain Smartness

A distinct triumph is scored by these blouses in their highly original treatment of collars, neckline and cuffs—points of supreme importance in blouses for this Fall and Winter season. A wholly delightful addition to any wardrobe.

Furs—

All the Successes of the Season

The unusual and original are expressed to a degree hitherto unnoted in fur fashions. Significantly prominent is the mode variety which provides furs different for different occasions and as differently designed for the varied types of women and young women.

Women's Coats—

Of Rich Fabrics Enriched by Furs

In the character of the cut and the cloth the coat mode of "1917" in presentation here establishes a new standard for distinctiveness. Originalities appear in the handling of the new fur-edged panel lines, in the interpretation of the belted modes.

Frocks and Gowns—

Befit the Character of the Occasion

Frocks for every use; the all-favored simple street styles; the rich, simply fashioned afternoon models; the beautiful affairs for dinners and dances—a colorful showing. Classic simplicity of line and Egyptian richness of fabric unite in the making of the new evening modes.
